FIREFIGHTER PREPARATION TIP OF THE MONTH:

What have you done today to get yourself one step closer to the career of your dreams? If you are not doing at least one thing every day to better prepare yourself for success, your chances of success will be significantly reduced. Just some things to do off the top of my head include:

- Create your resume (if you have not yet done so)
- Update your resume (if you have already created it)
- Surf the internet looking for firefighter jobs
- Surf the internet researching fire departments
- Surf the internet researching the fire service
- Volunteer your time in some capacity, to make your community or someone's life better
- Fill out an application for a firefighter position
- Stop by a fire station to meet the crew, have them show you the apparatus and station, and see what advice they can provide you to help you become a firefighter (make sure you bring dessert!) and to make new contacts to increase your network
- Maintain a clean shaven, professional appearance
- Go to the gym to participate in your physical fitness program
- Create a physical fitness program if you do not have one
- Enroll in fire technology classes at your local junior college to work towards your two year degree in fire technology
- Read a fire service textbook (your local library may have copies to check out)
- Read a fire service publication (your local fire station may be able to provide an extra copy)
- Practice your oral interview skills with a tape or video recorder
- Rehearse your prepared answers for the various types of questions you will be asked during the oral interview
- Take practice written examinations to ensure that you can receive a score in the high 90 percentile on your next written examination
- Learn how to cook a new meal
- Learn more about mechanical ability, especially if you do not have a strong background in it
- Keep yourself healthy so you don't have to call sick at your present job (yes, we do look at your present employment to determine whether you were excessively absent or tardy).
- Save some money (you'll need it for paramedic school or traveling to firefighter tests, or for many other reasons).

Nobody said becoming a firefighter was going to be easy. Too many people make excuses as to why they are not getting hired. They blame everyone but themselves. You are the only obstacle keeping yourself from becoming a firefighter. Channel any negative energy into positive energy and start doing something about your weaknesses. Spend some time every day preparing yourself and your odds of success will greatly increase!

LOCATING FIREFIGHTER EXAMINATIONS

- We suggest you subscribe to your local newspaper – even if it means subscribing to more than one if your city has several major papers. The Sunday edition's help wanted ads is the most important – it will usually include examination test dates and information. In addition, the sports section sometimes carries examination information. Your local library will also carry the current newspapers.
- There are also Internet subscription services that will provide information on examinations given across the country. Your investment in this type of service can be from $3.00-$9.00/month. The following websites: www.firecareers.com and www.firehouse.com are excellent sources of information on firefighter examinations.
- Try to keep a current list of cities giving examinations. Once a municipality gives an examination, an eligibility list is established and remains current for 1-2 years. If you know an examination is given annually, make a note on your calendar so that you make sure you don't miss an application deadline.
- Many major municipalities have a recruitment unit. Click on the link below for a list of 150 major fire departments across the country, along with their addresses and phone numbers. You should contact these departments and ask to have your name placed on their recruitment list or interest list (if they have one) to be notified of examination dates. You will usually be notified at least 2-3 weeks before the application process. To view the list of 150 major fire departments across the country, go to: www.fireprep.com/top\_150\_fire\_departments.html
- Some departments have a volunteer program. We strongly suggest that you join this group if it is available in your community. This will give you valuable insight into the department and personnel. Most volunteer programs are part of smaller departments – no major departments have volunteer programs.
- Many times, colleges that offer EMT and paramedic certification programs will post examination announcements on their bulletin boards. If you are enrolled in such a program, make note of this information. If not, visiting colleges and locating these bulletin boards will help you obtain as much information as possible.
- If you have the time and resources, we suggest that you make telephone calls to various departments. Ask them when their last examination was given and when the next examination is anticipated and make note of this information. A municipality may tell you that an examination will be given in September, but it may actually be given in July or August. You need to follow up with the Personnel Department to find out the current information on an examination. Departments with Fire Training Academies may also have examination information available.

- There are also numerous fire magazines that will publish entry-level examinations given across the country. You may subscribe to these magazines or you may find them at your local library.

Since 1950, Don McNea Fire School has prepared over 40,000 fire applicants with their entry level seminars and products. Fireprep.com has over 250 pages of FREE information and careers articles to help you reach your goal of becoming a firefighter. Go to www.fireprep.com and register for their free fireprep e-mail newsletter that features career articles by the countries top entry level authors. You will also be informed at no cost of firefighter examinations be given across the country. While at their website don't forget to review our award winning 'Ultimate Firefighter Exam Package'. This product has help hundreds of fire applicants finish in the top 2% of the exam process. Go to the link below to review the ultimate firefighter exam package. ## FREE FIRE RELATED EMAIL LISTS!

To better prepare yourself to become a firefighter, it is important to learn as much as you can about the career of a firefighter as well as continuously find ways to better prepare yourself to become a firefighter. One way to do this is by being on email mailing lists that are offered free of charge by many different resources.

I am assuming that you have heard the phrase "knowledge is power." I firmly believe this is true; especially in regards to preparing yourself to become a firefighter and even after you have obtained that firefighter position of your dreams. Many oral interview panels ask questions that test your knowledge of the fire service. Keeping on top of current events in the fire and EMS world is critical. Obtaining your 2-year degree in Fire Technology only provides you with enough knowledge to make you a safe beginner. It is up to you to stay on top of the fire service, especially with current trends and techniques. To become a master of your craft and become comfortable with the thought that to be successful in whatever you do, you must continue educating yourself. As soon as you stop educating yourself and thinking that you know it all, that is when accidents can occur and we put others and ourselves at risk.

One way to stay on top of the fire service is by subscribing to Fire and EMS related publications. While it is very worthwhile to start building a library of material that can assist you throughout your career, it can get quite expensive (but can be used as a tax write off once you become a firefighter - consult with your tax specialist to be sure). An alternative to subscribing to Fire and EMS related publications is to subscribe to the various FREE email newsletters that are available from some of those publications. Many of them provide daily or weekly updates on fire and EMS related topics that can provide you with more knowledge that can hopefully make you a better prepared firefighter candidate. Some of the free email newsletters I have come across include:

"Captain Bob" Smith, a retired Hayward Fire Department Captain, puts out a monthly newsletter titled the "Fire Zine" that provides information to the firefighter candidate on how to do better at oral interviews. You can get onto his mailing list by going to his website: CLICK HERE and scrolling down to the "Free Fire Zine Email Newsletter" link. Captain Bob's primary focus is on improving your oral interview scores. Besides the free "Fire Zine," his website provides a wealth of information to the firefighter candidate as well as the promotional fire service candidate. Captain Bob's website is one of the best resources around.

Don McNea Fire School out of Ohio puts out an email newsletter that provides information on various departments nationwide that are accepting applications. They also have a variety of books for sale and information for the firefighter candidate, especially in regards to written tests, psychological examinations, and entry-level and promotional testing in general. The Don McNea Fire School is the only resource I have seen that specifically assists the candidate with the written examination, as well as other related portions of the hiring process. Go to their website at www.fireprep.com for more information.

Firemenjobs.com has a free email newsletter that provides information on hiring, test information, job tips, and training information. To subscribe or obtain more information, go to their website at www.firemenjobs.com

Los Angeles Fire Department – The LAFD has a great email mailing list that provides you with up-to-the minute information about what is occurring with the LAFD; a great way to stay in touch with one of the largest and most respected fire departments in the U.S. Go to www.lafd.org/info.htm for more information.

Daily Dispatch – This is a free daily email that provides you fire and EMS news from across the United States. Many of the news stories I send out on my email list are provided by this service, courtesy of the International Fire Chiefs Association. The nice part about this service is that you can choose which states you want to subscribe to, so that you can stay in touch with the areas of the United States you most care about. Go to www.dailydispatch.com for more information.

California State Firefighters Association - Go to their website at www.csfa.net and then go down to the area that states, "SUBSCRIBE TO THE CSFA NEWSLETTER." CSFA is an organization that represents both volunteer and paid firefighters throughout the state. This is an excellent resource for you as a candidate. Their website also provides extensive news of firefighter related issues, an extensive LINKS section, numerous training opportunities, and information on how to become a CSFA member; something I highly suggest each and every firefighter candidate doing. They provide you with a monthly magazine and with numerous benefits as a member. As a student, you can join as an "Associate member."

Fire Engineering Magazine - Go to www.fire-eng.com and scroll down the home page and on the left side of the page, look for "SUBSCRIPTIONS"; directly underneath that will be "E-NEWSLETTER". Click on that link and you can subscribe to their free email newsletter. For those of you that are not aware of Fire Engineering, they put out a monthly publication that is probably the best in the fire service.

Firehouse Magazine - Go to www.firehouse.com/insider/alerts.html and you can subscribe to their daily newsletter that provides a wealth of nationwide fire and EMS related information and news topics. Their home page at www.firehouse.com is probably the most extensive and complete resource for fire related information.

Journal of Emergency Services (JEMS) - JEMS is the leading EMS related magazine currently in publication. Go to www.jems.com and scroll down to "Subscribe to the new JEMS email newsletter." They will then send you EMS related information, usually about once a week or once every two weeks. While on their website, take a look at what their site has to offer. This is an excellent wealth of information in regards to the EMS world. If you are planning to become an EMT, if you are an EMT that wants to do a better job for you patients, if you have the desire to become a paramedic, or if you are a paramedic that wants to keep on top of current EMT trends and techniques, this is a magazine I highly suggest that you subscribe to. Subscription information can be found on the website above.

Chabot College Fire Technology mailing list – Some of you might be on this mailing list already. If you are, I hope you are finding it to be worthwhile. If not, here are some of the things I will try to make you aware of if you are subscribed to this FREE resource:

- Notification of fire and EMS employment opportunities
- Notification of when the new issue of the Chabot College Fire & EMS News is available
- Notification of various newsworthy items relating to fire and EMS that might have occurred nationwide
- Notification of volunteer opportunities
- Notification of information that is relevant to YOUR fire technology and EMS program at Chabot College
- Your name and email address will NOT be shared with anyone. I promise to keep it confidential.

If you are interested in subscribing to this valuable resource, or you think you have already subscribed and have not received anything from me in the last month (which means your email address is not cooperating) and you would like to back on the email list, feel free to email me at sprziborowski@aol.com and let me know that you're interested in being on the email mailing list. In the subject heading of your email to me, please write something to the effect of "Chabot Fire mailing list" or something similar that alerts me to what you are asking of me. On the average, I probably send out a few emails a week, so I process not to bombard you with useless information every day. I hope what I send to you will be worthwhile in some capacity.

NOTE: Please do not expect me to compete with fine services such as www.firecareers.com or www.firerecruit.com – that is not my intention. If you're waiting for me to send you the firefighter jobs, you're going to miss out on a lot of opportunities, and you may not get them in a timely manner. Why? Because those companies pride themselves in having the most up-to-date firefighter testing information. I send things out when I find them on the internet or receive them from others that heard about them or discovered them while on the internet. While I may send out a job announcement every other week, they usually have multiple jobs listed daily, from across the country.

What are you waiting for? This is a no-brainer! I am a firm believer in the fact that you should subscribe to at least one fire or EMS related publication to keep yourself up-to-date. This is not meant to replace your subscribing to publications; it is meant to supplement the information that is given in those publications.

NOTE: All of the above resources are for your information only. I am not endorsing any of the above individuals, services, and/or products. I have my opinions about each and every one of them; however it is up to you to do your own research and find out what will most assist you in becoming a firefighter! Find out for yourself and take the time to look into each of the websites to see if you may benefit from them.
